

Basil/Albahaca

Ocimum basilicum

Basil is an herb traditionally used in savory cooking, both fresh and dried. Seeds should be planted in March - August, 6" apart and 1/2" deep.

Basil is an herb traditionally used in savory cooking, both fresh and dried. Seeds should be planted in March - August, 6" apart and 1/2" deep. (ESP)

The two most common varieties are Genovese and Thai basil. In addition to the edible leaves, basil produces flowers that can be used culinarily and to attract pollinators.

The two most common varieties are Genovese and Thai basil. In addition to the edible leaves, basil produces flowers that can be used culinarily and to attract pollinators. (ESP)

While native to Asia, basil can be easily grown in any warm climate, in-ground and in pots.

While native to Asia, basil can be easily grown in any warm climate, in-ground and in pots. (ESP)

COMMUNITY
FOOD BANK
OF SOUTHERN ARIZONA